ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

"The pace of change is accelerating at warp speed, buoyed by technological advances, communications, scientific achievements, globalism, and innovation.... the ability to obtain knowledge will be more indispensable than knowledge itself."

- Ferris Bueller

Demystifying the extract and construing the postulation with intellectual mastery is prudently an excellent hallmark in assimilating the holistic necessity of legal discourse. The integral outlook to encapsulate law and academia is a visible drift from a lawyer-centric, provincial, labour-intensive guild to a customer-focused, global, digitised industry, and the transition indicates mustering ideological standpoints with reflective predictions. To connote these figurative matrices on a scholastic count, Our AGISS Research Institute is organising an International Conference on "Human Rights and Constitution Law" in January 2024, with a principal objective to perceive the fundamental proportion of the Indian Constitution and Law of Human Rights. The Conference assimilates to establish an advanced legal forum of professional erudition of international stance where the pursuit for the acquisition of knowledge and critical understandings of legality shall reign supreme character with global participation, wherein Academicians, Legal Professionals, Research Scholars, Legal Draftsmen, Law Professors or Experts will scholarly collaborate for deliberations and interventions about the historical evolution of constitution or constitutional doctrines, to examine methods of construing the meaning of constitutional provisions, and to articulate a coherent set of opinions and prospects on significant, vital, controversial and current constitutional issues or dimensions, and also for expounding the regime, genesis and metamorphosis of Human Rights with a crucial approach to evolve interconnections with the global and regional mechanisms for the protection of Human Rights.

The Objective of the Conference is to captivate the audience, substantially and participants to engineer a holistic background to broadly inculcate inter-disciplinary leanings and applications of law in social-economic-political-ecological perspectives and to foster research temperament in legal pursuits, specifically concerning Constitution and Human Rights. The Legal Conglomerate will deliver an analytical fabric with a consequential emphasis on various principles, concepts, and theories that form the core foundation of the constitution-making process and systematically analyse, synthesise, and apply policies derived from critical-analytic reasoning over significant portions of the Indian Constitution. Simultaneously, the Conference Exchange will comprehend the Law of Human Rights, norms and practice, the procedures to protect Human Rights, and the instrumental approach for promoting Human Rights and its extensive legal framework. To substantiate the critical propaganda, the Conference will integrate a multifaceted curriculum to stimulate experiential learning intellectually and develop legal proficiency, emphasising jurisprudence application of law in a social context and inculcating national and global perspectives of law and advocacy. Henceforth, the Conference will distinctly enrich legal understanding at manifold levels concerning the Constitutions and Human Rights, encompass meticulous explanatory insights, both practically and conceptually, and imbibe professional layout for constructing a unique legal perspective with the realisation of societal responsibilities and futuristic vision on the application of law, therefore to nurture ethics to create and emerge conscientious world citizen.
